MOVING FROM RESOLUTIONS TO MEANINGFUL ACTIONS AT ANSHE EMET: LEARNING THE LESSONS OF HELEN KELLER AND RABBI TARFON ON THE SECULAR NEW YEAR

As I write these words, the world is preparing for the secular New Year. For weeks now, we have been treated to a series of year-end lists: “best movies”, “best television shows”, “best books”, “best short stories”, and on it goes. There is also the ritual of offering resolutions as we move from one year to the next. For me, resolutions are a yearly reminder of how different Jewish tradition is when it comes to the New Year.

On Rosh Hashanah, we are taught that in order to look forward, we must begin by looking backward. We begin with Teshuvah and approach those around us and earnestly acknowledge the wrongs that we have committed. We look inward to engage with the Almighty to examine the path that we are on and how to change our direction. On the secular New Year, we are encouraged to look forward and make resolutions. Some of us resolve to lose weight, get in shape, and engage in our relationships differently, just to name a few. Because our resolutions are more like a wish list than a serious plan for change, many of us find ourselves making the same resolutions the following year! As Mark Twain put it: Yesterday, everybody smoked his last cigar, took his last drink and swore his last oath. Today we are a pious and exemplary community. Thirty days from now, we shall have cast our reformation to the winds and gone to cutting our ancient shortcomings considerably shorter than ever.

While we may joke about the short-lived nature of our resolutions, the fact is that our society is in need of real change. The scourge of gun violence continues; financial disparity continues; and the tension between Americans only seems to grow. As we look to a New Year, rather than a concrete plan for real, sustainable change, what we have is little more than a wish list. When our wishes do not magically come true, like children we become frustrated, disappointed and cynical. Rather than fall into that trap in the coming year, might I suggest that we learn from the wisdom of Helen Keller: I am only one, but still I am one. I cannot do everything, but still I can do something. I will not refuse to do the something I can do.

Here at Anshe Emet, we employ our own version Helen Keller’s teaching. As an urban congregation, we take our responsibilities to the larger community seriously, knowing fully well that we will not solve the larger problem. We engage our community in opportunities to feed the hungry; working at local food pantries, the Night Ministry, and the Ark, and supporting Mazon.

I will not refuse to do the something I can do.

When it comes to racial injustice, the challenges feel equally overwhelming. Here again, we know that we will not be able to change the larger issues, but we can take steps to bridge the distance between Blacks and Jews. Here are two examples of programs that you should know about:

“Let’s Get Together!” An Interfaith Journey Toward Justice

Under the able leadership of Rabbi D’ror Chankin-Gould, Anshe Emet Synagogue, Bright Star Church, The Anti-Defamation League (ADL), The Jewish Community Relations Council (JCRC), Chicago Urban League (CUL), and The Jewish United Fund (JUF) have created a Black and Jewish teen leadership and educational trip entitled “Let’s Get Together!” The mission of our project is to bring together a group of 40 teenagers (9th-11th graders) affiliated with Chicago Jewish and African American communities for an immersive experience of learning, healing, relationship-building, and social justice. During the spring break, they will come together for a trip to Memphis, TN, Little Rock, AR and Springfield, IL focused on creating relationships, learning about shared histories, and leadership training. We are aiming to create a group of young people armed with strong bonds of friendship, a deep sense of shared purpose, and the leadership skills that will

MASTERS OF IMPERFECTION

Throughout the Torah, we are shown again and again how our superheroes were hardly perfect. Hardly. Adam eats the apple. Abraham argues with God over the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah but blindly follows the direction to slay his son.

He lies that Sarah is his sister to save his life with little concern about what will happen to her. Sarah laughs at God's promise to bring her a child. Then, she sends Hagar and Ishmael out into the desert with little concern for their safety. Jacob steals the birthright. And of course, Moses strikes the rock.

The teaching? People may have been made in the image of God but they weren't meant to be perfect. Even those that we hold up as our role models were not perfect. They have free will. They make mistakes.

The learning? There are implications for our actions. Adam and Eve leave the Garden. After the Akedah (binding of Isaac), it can be interpreted that Isaac never spoke to his father again. Sarah died in the next chapter perhaps after learning about her husband's intent to kill her only child. Moses never entered the Promised Land. We make choices. There are implications both good and bad.

Lately, I am more keenly aware of the imperfect world in which we live. Every day, it seems, I read about another man who has used his power to harass or abuse women. As a man, I cringe each and every time. As a Jew, I cringe doubly when the last name is Weinstein or the like. I cringe when I learn that another national monument or park may be used for development. I cannot fully communicate how I have treasured my time in these awe-inspiring places. I cringe when another child of a Southside family has been murdered in a drive by shooting. It's the real world and there are real world implications.

But the Torah tells us that there is redemption. Abraham sees the ram in the thicket and monotheism is born. Sarah partners with God and Isaac is born. Ishmael forms a nation. Joshua leads the Jews into Israel. In all cases, a forgiving God is our partner, the partner of imperfect people, redeeming imperfect people, making choices. Which brings me back to the communion of souls of imperfect people in our community at Anshe Emet. We pray, we sing, we dance, we learn, we support others in need, we celebrate life cycle events, we bring people together to do good. We make imperfect choices at times, but we are souls trying to partner with God to do tikkun olam.

Join us on Shabbat to see a 13 year old teach Torah. Join us for Anshe Emet Live this month and dance in the aisles. Join us at dinner for young families on the first Friday. Join us and sing along at Shabbat As You Are on the second Friday. Attend minyan when a friend is sitting shiva for a parent. Participate at Men's Club Talent Night in March. Let's build a more perfect community. Let's build something special together and share it with that imperfect world out there.

Menschen of the Month

Felix Tollinche, Brian Kurtz and Anita Denes-Meador

Felix, Brian and Anita have joined the core team of CHIdush, a 2 year grant exploring Jewish education, and the laboratory where we are experimenting with Little Builders, a class for families with 2-3 year olds, (see Rabbi Chankin-Gould’s article in the December AES bulletin). As we continue our journey exploring “How might we create pathways to Jewish life and community for families with young children?” Felix, Brian and Anita support the learning by attending workshops and meetings, bringing their families to our Little Builders class, and collecting feedback through surveys and interviews. Their dedication to CHIdush and Anshe Emet will lead to a community where participants of Little Builders classes will someday gather in each other’s homes to celebrate holidays, enroll their children together in AES religious school JK class, and attend each other’s b’nai mitzvah. With the help of Felix, Brian and Anita, our question has become “How might we create pathways to Jewish life and community that families with young children can travel and grow together for years?”

Thank you very much for your service Felix, Brian and Anita; we are grateful for your outstanding contributions to the community!
THE LEGACY OF DR. KING

On January 14, 1963, Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel was invited here to Chicago to deliver a speech at a conference on Religion and Race sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He opened his speech by offering a masterful retelling of this season’s series of Torah portions, injecting a powerful comparison to the struggles with racism from his day:

“At the first conference on religion and race, the main participants were Pharaoh and Moses. Moses’ words were: ‘Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, let My people go, that they may celebrate a feast to me.’ While Pharaoh retorted: ‘Who is the Lord that I should heed this voice and let Israel go? I do not know the Lord, and moreover I will not let Israel go.’

“The outlet of that summit meeting has not come to an end. Pharaoh is not ready to capitulate. The exodus began, but is far from having been completed. In fact, it was easier for the children of Israel to cross the Red Sea than for [an African-American man] to cross certain university campuses. Let us dodge no issues. Let us yield no inch to bigotry, let us make no compromise with callousness…” [The Insecurity of Freedom, pg. 85]

Fifty-one years ago, Rabbi Heschel acknowledged with striking language that, in his time, there was a battle akin to that of the Exodus story, a struggle for freedom from oppression. One perhaps even more challenging than the crossing of the Red Sea!

This month, Anshe Emet will commemorate the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King. We ask that you join us in one of the ways below as we dedicate ourselves to making our world a more just place.

Refugee Resettlement: Support refugees by tutoring and mentoring families who recently resettled in Chicago.

Young Adults and Avodah: On Friday night, January 5, representatives from Avodah, a social justice leadership organization for young adults, will join our YAD (Young Adult Division) service and dinner. We are so honored to have Avodah’s Corps Members teach us Torah that night. That evening we will also have a food drive, and present future volunteer opportunities with YAD.

ONE Northside Organizing Training: Towards the end of January, ONE Northside will offer organizing trainings for all those who are interested.

Reverend Robert Lee: Reverend Lee, a descendant of Robert E. Lee, is a pastor in Charlottesville. An outspoken advocate for equality, he will speak on Shabbat morning, January 20, 2018, at the conclusion of services (approximately 11:30 a.m.).

JUF Tov’s Mitzvah Mania: Mitzvah Manias offers volunteer opportunities throughout the city and suburbs for volunteers of all ages. These volunteer opportunities are appropriate for people of all ages, for individuals, families, and groups to perform the mitzvah of tikun olam in the greater Chicagoland area. Check out http://www.juf.org/tov/mm_mm_vol_frm.aspx?source=MitzvahManiaEmail20171206 for more details.

For more information on any of these opportunities, contact naaseh.ansheemet@gmail.com. This month, help us commemorate the legacy of Dr. King by studying his works, talking about justice, and joining us as we strive to make our world a better place.

CELEBRATE TU B’SHEVAT

Tu B’Shevat [the fifteenth day of the Hebrew month Shevat] originated as the new year for the trees and dates back to Talmudic times. It is one of the four “new years” of the Jewish calendar--Rosh Hashanah being the most prominent. This year Tu B’Shevat is celebrated on Wednesday, January 31.

Why do we need a new year for the trees? Certain mitzvot in the Torah necessitated knowing the age of a tree. Tu B’Shevat was the date established to compute this age. On each Tu B’Shevat the trees gain a year in age.

What exactly happens on this date to make it a “new year”? The rabbis' most common explanation is that it is around this time the fruit of the trees begins to form, the majority of the winter rain has fallen, and the sap in the trees has risen.

Trees played an important role in the life of our ancestors because of the desert climate in which they lived. People living in fertile climates were more likely to take for granted the many gifts which trees bestow - food, shade, housing, water and beauty.

Tu B’Shevat also became a day on which to commemorate our connection to Israel. Even though it is winter here in the United States, Tu B’Shevat falls at an appropriate time as far as Israel's seasons are concerned. Tu B’Shevat is celebrated by eating the fruits that were typical of those growing in Israel. A tradition based on Deuteronomy 8:9 holds that there are five fruits and two grains associated with Israel as “a land of wheat and barley, of vines, figs, and pomegranates, a land of olive trees and honey.” It is also customary to eat a new fruit on which the blessing, shehechiyanu, can be said.

Many people have adopted the idea of a Tu B’Shevat seder. In recent years, Tu B’Shevat has also served as a springboard for discussion on ecological and environmental issues and for investigating traditional Jewish views on our relationship to the natural world.

“You Tutoring!” A High-Tech Tutoring Experience

Led by Anshe Emet member Ruth Rau, “You Tutoring” is a joint venture between our congregation and Bright Star Church. The idea is for our children to provide after-school tutoring opportunities to students in the Bronzeville community. Because the logistics of face-to-face tutoring are so challenging, we have created a technological alternative. Once or twice a week, some of our junior High and High School students use their smartphones to connect with younger children and tutor via Google Hangout. Not only is the “You Tutoring” program designed to address schoolwork issues, it is also an opportunity to create meaningful relationships between the young people at Anshe Emet and Bright Star. Recently, Levi Kaplan spoke at his Bar Mitzvah about working as one of the tutors in the “You Tutoring” program as his Mitzvah Project. Listening to his moving words, it was clear that Levi had grown as much out of the program as those he was tutoring. It was especially inspiring to hear how enthusiastic he was to continue his involvement.

I will not refuse to do the something I can do.

As we begin the secular New Year, I hope that each of us will take the small incremental steps that are necessary to create the kind of change that is so needed in our world today. I also hope that you will celebrate the manner in which our congregation is responding to the needs that are so evident around us. Rather than resolutions, let us all do what we can to make this world a bit better during the course of the New Year. Long before Helen Keller spoke her inspiring words, Rabbi Tarfon put it this way: You are not required to finish the work neither are you free to desist from it. (Pirke Avot 2:15)

social justice at anshe emet

"Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere," wrote Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., in his “Letter from a Birmingham Jail”. On January 15, we remember the important work of Dr. King and take the opportunity to focus on the issues of poverty and racism against which he fought. January is one of the most important months on the Na’aseh calendar. Dr. King provides a role model for how we can create change through nonviolence. In the “Letter from a Birmingham Jail,” he called on religious communities to be allies in acting for change now, not waiting for the most “opportune” moment. Let us heed his call.

In the lead-up to MLK day we will have our Week of Action, where we will highlight relevant causes and activities that we think are great avenues for pursuing social action. During the Shabbat of and following MLK weekend, Anshe Emet will hear about the important themes of the holiday from special speakers, including Reverend Robert Wright Lee, a pastor in Charlottesville.

In January, we will also partner with YAD to hold a learning opportunity during their January 5th shabbat dinner with AVODAH, the Jewish Service Corps. Dinner attendees should bring a canned good to donate. In addition, we are working with YAD to create volunteer project on another date in January.

Meanwhile, we continue to support the needs of refugee families in Chicago, including a wartime ally from Afghanistan, his wife, and 18-month old. We need volunteers for several projects such as tutoring, job coaching, and practicing English. Please contact us to learn more!

Hartman: Israel's Milestones and Their Meanings: Legacy of the Past and Challenge of the Future
Instructor: Various Lecturers
Sundays, January 21 - March 18
Time: 10:00am - 12:00pm
Fee: Free for Anshe Emet Members/$50 General Public

Through the consideration of major historic moments, this iEngage series grapples with the different ideas and values that shape the meaning of modern Israel, Zionism, and Jewish identity today.

This innovative course explores the pivotal events of 1947 and 1967—following the 1917 Balfour Declaration—as key moments when Zionism unleashed new thinking about the meaning of Jewishness for generations to come.

The course engages participants in an open and pluralistic discussion about issues of Jewish identity, peoplehood, ethics and theology, as they relate to nationhood, land, sovereignty, Jerusalem, occupation, and moral red lines.

Writing Your Truth: How to Document Defining Moments & Personal Stories
Instructor: Candace Mittel
Thursdays, beginning January 18 for six sessions
Time: 6:30-8:00 pm
Fee: $75 members/$85 General Public

In this 6 part series, you will write the stories you've always wanted to set on paper but never did, for whatever reason. Perhaps it is a story from a grandparent, from a family holiday celebration, or anything else. Maybe you didn't know where to start, haven't had the time, or have just been putting it off -- until now!

Through this small group workshop, honest feedback from peers, and out-of-the-box, experimental prompts, you will learn how to write your truth and come to understand the breadth of possibilities for using language, style, and structure in personal writing. Your facilitator, Candace Mittel Kahn, will guide you through the stickiest moments in any writer's journey, including: pushing through writer's block; learning how to show and not tell; capturing ineffable moments; and putting your most vulnerable self on the page. Sponsored by Sisterhood and open to all.

Melton: We Are What We Remember
A 4-part series taught by Anshe Emet clergy & staff
Check Shabbat Today & the Anshe Emet website for sign-up information coming soon!

The main objective of this course is to offer learners opportunities to explore the significant impact of Jewish collective memory on the current and future status of worldwide Jewry: by asking:

- What do we remember and why?
- How are national memories formed and preserved?

The course opens with the Torah's directive to remember the attempted Jewish national genocide perpetrated by Israel's arch-enemy, Amalek. The next three lessons each explore significant historical periods and the memories formed around them:
- reflections on the Spanish expulsion
- recollections of Poland just before and following the Shoah
- the State of Israel as envisioned by its founders and as experienced by its citizens today.

Concluding our year-long exploration of Jewish Lives...

Coming Soon
Yitzhak Rabin: Soldier, Leader, Statesman
by Itamar Rabinovich

An insider’s perspective on the life and influence of Israel’s first native-born prime minister, his bold peace initiatives and his tragic assassination. Elliott Abrams of the Wall Street Journal wrote:

"Mr. Rabinovich, the distinguished Israeli scholar and diplomat . . . easily establishes that the prime minister was a man of great complexity. . . . Even the warm esteem in which he holds Rabin does not prevent Mr. Rabinovich—a scholar with an abiding commitment to historical accuracy—from presenting a portrait of his friend in full"

Join a book group to discuss this multifaceted figure of Israel’s history. Books will be available for purchase through the synagogue. Look for more information in Shabbat Today and synagogue announcements.

AWARD-WINNING MEN’S CLUB MENSCHEN/MENTION

I hope everyone had a good time with your Men’s Club friends at the Chicago Bulls game on Monday, December 11 as they played the Boston Celtics. I would like to congratulate the Bulls on their dominating victory! Permit me to take this opportunity on behalf of our Men’s Club Board to express our wishes that you and your family had great and festive Hanukkah and secular New Year holidays. Our award-winning Anshe Emet Men’s Club expects 2018 to be another outstanding year of Men’s Club events.

We begin 2018 with a special presentation by fellow Anshe Emet congregant and best-selling author, Jonathan Eig. Jonathan will discuss his new book, Ali: A Life-- the first complete, unauthorized biography of Muhammad Ali. The book represents more than four years of research and over 500 interviews, including Ali’s family, FBI tapes, and meetings with many celebrities. Signed copies of this illuminating work will be available for purchase. You must register online for this event at tinyurl.com/AliALifejan2018.

Note that this event originally was scheduled for November and rescheduled for Tuesday, January 16, at 6:30 p.m. as Jonathan’s book was nominated for an award in London and he was compelled to go. In the interim Jonathan has received several additional accolades for his book including an excellent piece in the Chicago Tribune. There also will be plenty of beer and kosher pizza to enjoy as Jonathan thrills us with the highlights of Ali’s life. Don’t miss this exciting evening!

On February 4 at 8:30 a.m. Men’s Club once again will host our annual World Wide Wrap instruction on how to put on tefillin at morning minyan. This also is an opportunity to purchase tefillin at a special discounted price due to the partial subsidy provided by your Men’s Club. This is a special opportunity too because you will be engaging in this mitzvah with Men’s Clubs all over the world on the same morning.

We will be hearing about another sports figure on Tuesday evening, February 6, as Men’s Club will be hosting a presentation by Brent Novoselsky--a nice local Jewish guy who grew up in Skokie. Brent will talk about his 7-year career in the NFL. More details will follow, and I suspect that they will include some mention of beer.

If you have not already done so, then make 2018 the year that you become involved in your Men’s Club. I am sure that it will add much toward making this year one that is filled with many new and enjoyable opportunities. As it reads on the banner of the Federation of Jewish Men’s Clubs website, we are “involving Jewish Men in Jewish Life.” As always, feel free to contact us at mensclub@ansheemet.org, check our Facebook page, Anshe Emet Men’s Club, or talk to me in shul. We are incomplete without you.

Barry Balik, Men’s Club President

HARTMAN RETURNS TO AES

There are so many tremendous opportunities for study and learning at our shul. We are blessed to have fantastic teachers including clergy and some of our fabulous congregants. One of the most popular series, is the Shalom Hartman Institute iEngage program where adults study with our wonderful rabbi’s (live) and the scholars of the Hartman Institute via a DVD series in a variety of topics relating to Israel. Eighty adults in a room discussing, debating, learning, and listening is a beautiful thing.

This year, as Israel turns 70, Hartman returns to AES with a look at the milestones and their meanings to Israel. For eight weeks starting January 21, students will explore the pivotal events of 1947 and 1967 - following the 1917 Balfour Declaration - as key moments when Zionism unleashed new thinking about the meaning of Jewishness for generations to come. The course engages Jews in an open and pluralistic discussion about issues of Jewish identity, peoplehood, ethics, and theology, as they relate to nationhood, land, sovereignty, Jerusalem, occupation, and moral red lines.

This is a very popular program and I encourage registration as soon as possible. With gratitude to our anonymous donor, this program is free to members of Anshe Emet and is available to non-members for a cost of $50. The class will be limited to 80 adults. To register, please go to https://tinyurl.com/AESiEngage2018.

Other upcoming events:

- January 7, 9:30 a.m. Connecting the Expecting Reunion celebrating 100+ Babies
- January 8, 7:00 p.m. Movie Night- Hava Nagila

Challenges or suffering cannot be controlled, a positive spiritual and emotional response may help advance healing. As one of the Tikvah Chaplains recently reported:

"I visited a Holocaust survivor in an assisted living facility on Chicago’s North Side. He seemed lonely and distraught, as he considered his aging and decline. I asked him, “Is there anything on this Thanksgiving for which you are thankful?” He paused for a moment or two and then said, “My family and my life. I never knew if I would even have either one when I was in the camps. While I know they cannot be here all the time, I am grateful they come and take care of me when I need them. And I am just grateful to be alive in this country.” His mood changed as he was able to offer these words to me knowing that I would accept whatever he would say. And he grew calmer and less anxious as he found ways to express gratitude.

Tikvah also provides support for professionals and institutions by offering learning opportunities as well as Shabbat and holiday programming.
