"In the spirit of the Maccabees, I would ask you to consider raising this question when lighting the Hanukkah candles this year: What Jewish ideas are so important to you that you would be willing to fight for them?" — Rabbi Michael S. Siegel

What Are We Celebrating On Chanukah?

Michael S. Siegel
Senior Rabbi
The Norman Asher Rabbinic Chair
msiegel@ansheemet.org

“What is your favorite Jewish holiday?”

When I ask this question to B’nai Mitzvah candidates, the answer is almost always Chanukah. When I ask why, they will speak of the joy of lighting their Hanukkiah; their love of latkes and sufganiyot; and, of course, presents. When I ask them what exactly we are celebrating on Chanukah, the answers vary. Some speak of the miracle of oil; others will talk about the victory of the Maccabees against a far larger army; and yet others will speak of the revolt as a fight for religious freedom. My guess is their parents would give many of the same answers, minus the presents!

When answering this very question, the great British Jewish historian, Cecil Roth, made a fascinating point about the Maccabean revolt: “It was one of the decisive events in human history. Never before had men been convinced, as they were then, that an idea was to fight for...” In other words, Roth argued, the war against the forces of Antiochus was not one over subjugation but one of ideas, and this was something truly revolutionary and countercultural.

The Assyrians already had military control over Judea, and the Judeans already paid a tribute to their overlords. What the war was actually about was replacing Jewish ideas -religious, cultural and societal - with those of Hellenism. It would be a mistake to think that the war was fought over religion alone: the real goal was to destroy the foundations of Judaism. When Mattathias refused to offer an unkosher animal on the sacrificial altar to one of the Greek gods, he was saying no to the Greek way of life. As Cecil Roth taught, the Maccabees were engaged in a revolution of ideas.

In the spirit of the Maccabees, I would ask you to consider raising this question when lighting the Chanukah candles this year: What Jewish ideas are so important to you that would you be willing to fight for them? This Chanukah, I would suggest that members of our community take a moment before lighting the candle and offer one answer a night to that question. If you would, share your list with me at msiegel@ansheemet.org. Here are a few suggestions for your consideration:

- The Creation is inherently good
- Human beings are created in the image of God and thus have inherent worth
- We are responsible to share our bread with the hungry and shelter the homeless
- The Jewish people have the right to a homeland in the land of Israel
- God made a covenant with Abraham that I am part of today
- All Israel is responsible for one another
- We must care for the stranger
- We have an obligation to repair the world

Which would you accept? Are there others that you would reject? What would you add? Since the time of the Maccabean revolt, Jews have been willing to fight on the battlefield of ideas. It is the story of how a tiny people has had a profound impact in the world. How will we fulfill our role as modern Maccabees? Happy Chanukah!

A Message from the Board President

“In the midst of death life persists...In the midst of darkness light persists.” — Mahatma Gandhi

Danielle Lazar
President
Anshe Emet Synagogue
dlazar1971@gmail.com

As we come to the close of 2021 and are in the midst of a season that is filled with both impending winter and holidays of light, I am struck by how much the Gandhi statement above resonates with me right now.

Certainly, the change of seasons reminds us that life persists—the hearty nature of my indoor plants perhaps shows this more than I like to admit... But perhaps more deeply it is the everyday of life that continues to ground all of us.

There are life cycle events—baby namings, weddings, B’nei Mitzvah, birthdays and funerals. There are—perhaps most importantly – the mundanities of the every day: making breakfast, drinking coffee, playing with our kids, watching Ted Lasso (we recently watched the first season...), checking the headlines, having dinner, making calls to our friends and families, tucking children into bed. As I have commented before, underlying these everyday occurrences are our relationships with our families and friends. In the midst of darkness, light persists.

This gets to the very heart of Hanukkah and this time of year more broadly. It is hard to turn on the news sometimes. It is difficult to see our way past what can be very dark. Yet, we light one candle, then another and another – until there is more light than dark and we can see what is right there in front of us. For me, that is my family. My friends. My community.

Every year—except for last—Jay and I have hosted “latke fest” in our home. Besides the frying of many potatoes (one year, my dad and I made nearly 50 lbs. of latkes) and the annual debate of sour cream or apple sauce, we would ask friends and family to gather around and light candles together. The singing was loud and the joy of being together was evident.

At Anshe Emet, our annual Hanukkah party was postponed last year, but as we are starting to turn the corner, there are many opportunities to come together and celebrate in person. Please check out our website at ansheemet.org for all of the latest happenings.

I hope you will join me and just in case you don't have one of your own, look for my family's latke recipe on page seven of this issue—courtesy (and in loving memory) of my dad.

Upcoming Program Highlights

An Evening with Dara Horn, Author of the Book, People Love Dead Jews Thursday, November 11 7PM

Join us for an evening with noted author, Dara Horn as she visits us virtually to discuss her new book, People Love Dead Jews: Reports From a Haunted Present.

A startling and profound exploration of how Jewish history is exploited to comfort the living. In these essays, Horn reflects on subjects as far-flung as the international veneration of Anne Frank, the mythology that Jewish family names were changed at Ellis Island, the blockbuster traveling exhibition Auschwitz, the marketing of the Jewish history of Harbin, China, and the little-known life of the "righteous Gentile" Varian Fry. Throughout, she challenges us to confront the reasons why there might be so much fascination with Jewish deaths, and so little respect for Jewish lives unfolding in the present.

Love, Loss and Wisdom with Rabbi Chankin-Gould Begins Thursday, December 2 Ends January 20

This 6 Session course is a Project of the Florence Melton Adult Mini-School
(No class on Dec. 23 & 30)

Discover, during this six-week course, the Jewish responses and rituals that take us through mourning and arrive at a place of healing. When death inevitably enters our lives, Jewish wisdom and ritual can help us cope with heartbreak and loss, the anguish of why suffering exists.

We will also seek to understand the big questions of what Judaism says about life after death and its understanding of messianic times. With a wider lens, we gain a context with which to better understand our moments of anguish as individuals and as a community.

An Evening with Mark Oppenheimer Author of the Book, Squirrel Hill: The Tree of Life Synagogue Shooting and the Soul of a Neighborhood Tuesday, December 7

Join us for an in person lecture with Mark Oppenheimer, creator of the podcast, Unorthodox, as he discusses his newest book, Squirrel Hill: The Tree of Life Synagogue Shooting and the Soul of a Neighborhood is a piercing portrait of the struggles and triumphs of one of America's renowned Jewish neighborhoods in the wake of unspeakable tragedy that highlights the hopes, fears, and tensions all Americans must confront on the road to healing.

Boni Fine
Executive Director
Anshe Emet Synagogue
bfine@ansheemet.org

As I plan for my retirement at the end of December, I am filled with gratitude for the last four years at Anshe Emet. This community holds a very dear place in my heart and I feel blessed to count so many friends among you.

As many of you know, I came to Anshe Emet at a very fragile point in my life. My husband had died quite shockingly a few months earlier from an aneurysm aptly nicknamed "the widow maker". From the moment I walked into the synagogue, I was enveloped in a caring embrace that truly kept me afloat through those first difficult years. Though I thought I was taking on an interim position for a few months, I soon realized I could not have landed in a better place for the foreseeable future.

Fast forward to the pandemic when I shudder to think of how isolated I would have been without Anshe Emet. Again, this community and my work here gave me purpose and kept me busy and engaged through what could otherwise have been a very dark and lonely time.

Throughout, I have had the privilege of working with truly outstanding leadership so that no matter my age or experience, I was continually learning and growing. I am especially proud of the work of Az Yashir chaired by Dr. Ricardo Rosenkranz, Kadimah chaired by Howard Tullman, the Health & Safety Committee chaired by Dani Lazar and the Officers and Board of Trustees led by past presidents Steve Silk and Art Friedson. None of this work would have come to fruition without the vision and leadership of Rabbi Siegel.

Rabbi Siegel and I have shared a partnership and friendship built on mutual trust and respect. I firmly believe that the relationship with the Senior Rabbi is key to the success of any synagogue Executive Director. Anshe Emet will continue to be well served in this way by the very able and dynamic Mimi Weisberg who has already put that strong working relationship to use in service of the congregation.

None of us knows what the future holds. I do know that I leave Anshe Emet in very capable hands, poised to fulfill the promise of a new generation.

Lehitraot,

Boni Fine

Hitting the High Notes!

Sharon Mendelson Markman and her siblings (Debbie and David) have walked Anshe Emet's hallowed halls since they were children. Today, Sharon, husband Scott and children Leland and Alexa remain members and donors of Anshe Emet.

"My parents, Bob and Linda Mendelson, schooled us in the sounds of music and the art of giving...both of which we are achieving here." Markman said. In mid-October, the Mendelson family donated a 50-year-old gorgeous Steinway grand piano to AES. "The piano was part of our family for decades," says Markman. I can't imagine a better place for it to 'land' than the Main Sanctuary at Anshe Emet. "The piano has been part of our history, our home and our family," says Linda Mendelson. "I'm certain that it will give many years and much music and joy to Anshe Emet."

We are grateful to the Mendelson Markman family for this beautiful gift.

A Message from the Sisterhood

Anshe Emet Sisterhood is invested in supporting the Conservative Jewish movement and serving the Anshe Emet community. We have much planned for 2021-2022!

One of Sisterhood's commitments to the Anshe Emet community is to provide Kiddish Cups to all the B'nai Mitzvah. This year we are having our Kiddish Cup fundraiser Sunday, December 12th. Sisterhood is hosting a Tu B'Shevat Seder on Sunday, January 16th, 2022, and our Sisterhood Shabbat is scheduled for February 26th, 2022. What makes this Shabbat so special is that the entire service is planned and led by our members and women in the Anshe Emet community.

Sisterhood is committed to Torah Fund which supports the 5 Conservative Rabbinical schools in the world and helps educate and train generations of rabbis, cantors, educators, and lay leaders in the Conservative Movement. We are planning a Torah Fund Tea featuring Hillel leaders in Chicago including Northwestern University Sunday, April 3, 2022.

Sisterhood is also a sponsor of College Connection, Night Ministry at Anshe Emet and a book club. We welcome all to join us and become Sisterhood members; we look forward to a wonderful year!

Lazar Family Latke Recipe

INGREDIENTS:

4 cups of peeled and cubed
Russet potatoes (about 5 lbs.)
1/4 onion (peeled)
2 eggs
1/2 tsp baking powder
1/4 cup of matzo meal
Salt and Pepper to taste
Vegetable oil, for frying

DIRECTIONS:

1. Blend potatoes/onion/eggs and baking powder in a blender in batches. Do not add in matzo meal and salt/pepper. (You can add a little bit of water if you need to get things started)
2. Pour blended egg/onion/potato/ baking powder into a large bowl. Add in the matzo meal, salt and pepper. Mix together. If it seems too watery, add in a bit more matzo meal.
3. Make latkes. My sister always likes me to be more specific... So...
4. Heat vegetable oil - about 1/4 inch deep.
5. Depending on size you want - take batter and drop into heated oil. Don't put too many in at the same time. My latkes are about 1/4 cup each. (I use a serving spoon to measure out)
6. Fry until browned and crisp on one side. Flip over and brown/crisp on the other side.
7. Drain on paper towels.
8. Serve with applesauce, sour cream or other toppings

TIPS:

Make sure the oil is heated enough. Add more oil if needed.

Also, you can increase this recipe no problem. The ratios always remain the same.

If you wanted to, make this into a "potato kugel" or casserole—often made during Passover & Rosh Hashanah—or sometimes on Shabbat: Heat oven to 375. Sauté 1 large onion. Add this to two cups of the potato mixture. Melt 1 tbsps schmaltz (chicken fat) or vegetable oil in a 9x12 casserole or baking dish. Pour in the potato/onion mixture.

Bake for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Cut into squares and serve.

Enjoy!

A Note of Gratitude to AES & BZ

I have served on the Anshe Emet synagogue board on multiple occasions in various positions and for various durations. I have served on the Bernard Zell School Board for 20+ years continuously until this year. I have been the high holiday usher in the sanctuary for over 30 years. I was born a member of the synagogue. My Bar Mitzvah in 1971 was in the Anshe Emet sanctuary on the same bimah my father stood 32 years earlier for his Bar Mitzvah. My wife and I were married by our Anshe Emet rabbi in

THIS COMMUNITY IS EXCEPTIONAL...NURTURING...AND PROFOUNDLY SPIRITUAL.

1988 and, God willing, I will have my end of life celebration ceremony in its sanctuary. It is in no small measure my spiritual home. However, it is the school whose mission it is to educate Jewish children, to teach them diligently the values, ethics, wisdom and love of our people while at the same time providing the highest caliber of secular education in the world, that has always felt like my life's philanthropic calling.

I write this not to boast but to brandish my credentials as one who is deeply involved in the community and has certainly put his time and money where his big mouth is. This community is exceptional. The people who make up the community are some of the kindest, most nurturing, giving and profoundly spiritual that anyone can hope to meet on one's life journey.

Bernard Zell was born from Anshe Emet. When my daughter graduated from Bernard Zell Anshe Emet Day School in 2005, the community called the school "Anshe". I stood with and next to leaders Pritzker, Jacobson, Lufrano, Esser, Pierce,

Lucas, Hirschsohn and Cooper as the school built its 1999 wing, its Field of Dreams and the beautiful new wing. Bernard Zell is all grown up. It is an independent community Jewish day school serving all who seek a profoundly Jewish, excellent education for their child in an unmatched community. The synagogue is a strong beacon of light not just to the Chicagoland community but to the Jewish faith since before I was born in 1958. Leaders Goldman, Cohen and Siegel have not only provided a beautiful and learned home for spiritual worship but also are unparalleled in our denomination. Goldman's strong advocacy of Israel helped create our modern Jewish state. Cohen's unyielding advocacy on behalf of women has changed Jewish clergy forever and for the better. Siegel's ardent advocacy of inclusion for Jews by choice, racial differences and the LGBTQ-plus community has not only made this community stronger but is a model for all faiths to emulate.

In short, if you are reading this you are blessed. Blessed by the community and the opportunity to engage with others that enrich your life and enrich those you touch to a level I find impossible to fully appreciate or enunciate.

As I leave my leadership posts in the community I love, I want to express my deepest gratitude for having been lucky enough to have my journey touched by all of you. Simply put, I will close with the words of the first note that I put in the Kotel on my first visit to Israel in the spring of 1974: THANK YOU.

Chicago as Our Classroom: Holidays Around Town Sunday, November 14

Chicago As Our Classroom is an amazing annual event where all of Anshe Emet's families with JK-8th graders can get to know their fellow families, learn with members of our community they may not otherwise meet, and discover that Jewish life is happening all around our town.

On Sunday, November 14, Anshe Emet families are stepping out to uncover Jewish Holidays all over this great city of Chicago. Families might celebrate Shabbat in the Evolving Planet exhibit at the Field Museum, learn about harvesting, dairy and Shavuot in the Farm Tech exhibit at the Museum of Science and Industry, or discover themes of love for Tu B'Av at the Art Institute!

Holidays around Town is Anshe Emet families' opportunity to get out into the community and explore Jewish holidays in places you'd never suspect. Volunteer docents from our Anshe Emet community will guide the experiences. New this year - virtual experiences! We understand that stepping inside a museum may still not feel safe for many of our families, so this year, we've created virtual versions of several of our museum experiences. Families can discover Jewish holidays in our urban destinations without leaving home.
