A Rally in Washington in 1987

"In theory, there is no difference between theory and practice. But in practice, there is."
— Benjamin Brewster

In my Rabbinate, I have learned that these words are not just a quip, but something that one should take seriously. While in Rabbinical School, I remember debating with colleagues regarding the proper role of a rabbi. Some believed that the main focus should be on teaching and preaching. I included myself in the camp of those who thought that Rabbis had a responsibility to also lead change. In my first few years at Anshe Emet, I learned the power of practice over theory.

It was 1987, and Mikael Gorbachev, the leader of the Soviet Union, was coming to America to meet with President Reagan. His country was in desperate straits, and President Gorbachev planned to ask his American counterpart to lift the economic sanctions that were crippling his country's economy. Because those sanctions were in place largely as a response to the Soviet Union's human rights abuses against Soviet Jews, a rally was planned by the leaders of the American Jewish community to protest any changes until the Russians "Let Our People Go"! A call went out to Rabbis encouraging them to bring members of their congregations to Washington, and so I sent out a notice. To my delight, a number of people responded.

On a very cold Sunday in December, we landed in Washington. I will never forget the sight of 250,000 people standing together on the Mall in our nation's capital, chanting, and singing with the likes of Peter Paul and Mary. Hearing Natan Sharansky speak after being released from a Soviet Gulag after 9 years brought tears to my eyes. His words that day still ring in my ears: "The Soviets have to know," Sharansky told the crowd, "that no missiles and tanks, no camps and prisons, can extinguish the light of the candle of freedom." None of us had ever seen anything like it. There were Jews of every religious stripe, every organization, young and old, standing together as one people. It was a living embodiment of the words Kol Yisrael Arayvim Zeh La Zeh: All Israel is responsible for one another.

After the rally ended, we walked together to the bus taking us to the airport. The Jewish Federations around the country had done a miraculous job organizing the day. Looking into the faces of members of the Anshe Emet community that day, it was clear that we had just witnessed an historic moment. None of us could have imagined, or would have believed, that the next day, President Reagan would tell Mikael Gorbachev: "Yesterday I had 250,000 people in my backyard saying, 'Let my people go.' Until you do what they want, nothing will happen." In the years following, the Soviet Union fell and millions of Jews were able to leave and create new lives in Israel, America, and around the world.

Years later, Yossi Klein Halevi, the Israeli journalist, author, and friend to this congregation, wrote regarding that rally: "The movement's success was based, in part, on its emphasis on klal Yisrael, working with the entirety of the Jewish people. It was the last great expression of the ideology of klal Yisrael, and that is its challenge to Jews today. Are we still capable of functioning as one people, on any issue?"

I do not have an answer to this question, but I do know that along with all of the responsibilities of congregational life, Rabbis need to continue to be on the front line of positive change. That day I learned the difference between theorizing about the call to justice in our tradition, and the power of putting those words into practice. Looking over the past 40 years, we have worked together to make Anshe Emet a place that works in every way to create positive change in our congregation, the larger Jewish community, and beyond: From our involvement in organizations like Mazon and Natal, to social justice efforts within our community like Na'aseh, Koleinu, Resettling Refugees in Chicago, or Ma'ot Hittin, our work reflects the power of practice over theory. What a privilege it has been to learn this age-old lesson again and again since that cold December day in 1987.

Maimonides said that “A person should always [take care] not to cast his thoughts backwards [to the past], for his eyes are placed on his face and not his back”

Yet we all know that we cannot move forward if we don't understand where we have been and where we are going.

For 40 years, our Senior Rabbi, Michael Siegel, has created a critical balance between understanding the past and envisioning the future. He also is keenly aware that it is important to be responsive to where we are at the present. Rabbi Siegel has challenged the conventions of what it means to be a Conservative congregation by creating a tent of inclusion and diversity, both in practice and in thought. He has reached out locally, nationally, and internationally, to engage people in important conversations, always teaching by doing: how to listen, how to ask questions, how to show up, even when it is uncomfortable.

Perhaps most importantly, he has been there for each one of us through life's ups and downs. He is there for us during joyous events like marriages, b'nai mitzvah, and births, but also the difficult ones like illnesses and funerals. He is also there for us during life's smaller moments, helping us live Jewishly on all the days in between these “big” milestones of life.

As host of the year-long celebration of Rabbi Siegel's 40th anniversary year at Anshe Emet, I am looking forward to the many opportunities we will have to celebrate Rabbi Siegel's legacy of leadership. I am especially excited about the programs that will allow us to come together as a community and show Rabbi Siegel our gratitude while learning with and from each other.

Please take a moment to peruse this newsletter and mark your calendars for one or more of the many programs designed to honor our Rabbi, including a special celebration on May 7, 2023!

While your calendar is open, don't forget to purchase tickets or a sponsorship to our 20th Annual Kaplan Concert. Cantor Brook is bringing extraordinary Grammy-award winning musical guests to our bimah to honor the legacy of Richard Tucker and it should not be missed!

With gratitude for your continued support of Anshe Emet.

AES Upcoming Program Highlights

Radioactive: How Father Coughlin Brought anti-Semitism and Demagoguery to American Media With Andrew Lapin

Thursday, December 8
7PM

During the Great Depression, the most dangerous man in America was a “radio priest” from Detroit. Father Charles Coughlin, a Catholic priest, broadcasting pioneer and celebrity, used his nationwide radio sermons to promote fascism and antisemitic conspiracy theories in the run-up to WWII. He became America's first mass-media demagogue, cultivating a loyal following of violent Nazi gangs, and created a new method for spreading hate to the masses... that continues to be emulated today. With journalist and host of the podcast, Radioactive, Andrew Lapin.

The Arnold H. Kaplan,

In synagogue life, this time of year is lovingly referred to as “after the holidays”. Here at Anshe Emet, we are all still buzzing from the joy of coming together as a community for the HighHoly Days. At the same time, we are thrilled to turn our attention to the many wonderful programs, classes, and holidays still ahead. Our music team is excitedly preparing for our 20th Annual Dr. Arnold H. Kaplan Concert, Richard Tucker’s Legacy: A Chicago Celebration on Sunday, December 11th at 4pm. Richard Tucker was one of the most celebrated popular operatic tenors of the 20th Century as well as one of the cantorial greats of his time. Tucker’s proud Jewish life and secular artistic impact continue to serve as an increasingly rarefied example of how broadreaching a life and legacy can be. Tucker’s son, Barry Tucker (President of the Richard Tucker Foundation), Grammy-award winning opera megastars Angel Blue and Matthew Polenzani, Grammy-award winner Cantor Gideon Zelermyer, and nationally renowned opera expert and educator Roger Pines will join us at Anshe Emet as we celebrate

Tucker through his deep connection with the city of Chicago, where he was a beloved star of the Chicago Lyric Opera for 9 seasons, and frequent guest cantor in synagogues throughout the city.

We look forward to seeing you at this historic celebration, as well as at our weekly musical Kabbalat Shabbat services, every Friday at 6PM. Here’s to a wonderful “after the holidays”!

5783 is off to a good start with our youth! Some chai-lights include:

- Schmoozing with over 30 parents during the Donuts with the Director event on Sunday mornings
- Selling out for our November 6 Petting Zoo Event – more similar events to come soon!
- Building a fun Day Off Program for November 8 including batting cages & arcade games, clowning acts, making slime, a silent disco and more with over 30 students registered
- Watching our inclusion specialist support a student who needed a break from his/her classroom and seeing the student back in class a few minutes later sounding out Hebrew prayers with a friend
- Reveling in the beauty of Todd Kessler, our music specialist, lead tefillah in a sanctuary of 1st and 2nd graders who were intensely following along in their siddurim and listening to parents exclaim that our youngest children are practicing the freeze dances that Todd showed them at religious school at home

- Listening to 4th graders rock out to a song parody about Jonah and the whale as they practice their Textploration project

One additional moment I would like to share with all of you occurred a few weeks ago. A few classes were gathered in the sukkah as our shinshinim, teachers, and Rabbi D'ror led stations for each child to shake the lulav and etrog. A first grader watched for a few minutes and declined to have a turn when offered. Within a few moments, a friend whispered some words of encouragement and the girl who just wanted to sit before walked up to her teacher for a turn. The teacher had her repeat the bracha (blessing) a few words at a time and guided her to shake the lulav and etrog. As the girl walked back to her seat, she beamed with pride.

Looking forward to many more moments of meaning in the religious school and with our youth in 5783.
